Alphabet recently posted better-than-expected first-quarter earnings. To that end, the Internet search provider's revenues climbed 16.7% to $36.3 billion, thanks to solid double-digit growth in Google Advertising, Other, and Other Bets segment. Meanwhile, on a non-GAAP, after-tax, front, total expenses rose 170 basis points as a percentage of the top line (after excluding the $1.7 billion charge from the European Commission (EC) fine and the $2.1 billion from the SoftBank share acquisition). Alphabet's earnings per share rose 17% to $3.38, driven by a 24% increase in revenues. Alphabet's revenues are derived primarily from the licensing of search technology and solutions to enterpris...
